Concert Pianist, Virginia Reinecke, To Give Recital

On Sunday, March 11, Miss Virginia Reinecke will give a piano recital at Loyola College. The program, which is sponsored in conjunction with the Gorman Lecture Series, is open to the public without cost. The concert will begin at 8:30 p.m. in Cohn Hall.

Miss Reinecke has been a member of the Loyola Faculty since 1959 and is the director of the Loyola College Glee Club.

As a scholarship student Miss Reinecke was graduated cum laude and with an Artist's Diploma from the Peabody Conservatory of Music. She is the only three-time winner of the Paul Thomas Prize given at Peabody Conservatory of Music to potential concert pianists.

World Fame

She has given numerous recitals in the eastern United States including Town Hall appearances in 1950 and 1953. She has been piano soloist with the Baltimore Symphony several times and twice with the Watergate Pops Orchestra in Washington.

Miss Reinecke was graduated from the Paris Conservatory with highest honors after a year's study there on a Fulbright Scholarship. While in Paris she had the opportunity of performing for Alfred Corset.

In addition to performing in several musical centers in Europe, recently Miss Reinecke played in recital for the Musicians Club of New York at the Debussy Centennial Celebration.

Program

The program will include W.A. Mozart's Sonata in C major; F. Liszt's Sonata in B Minor; C. Debussy's Children's Corner; S. Prokofiev's Sonata No. 3 Op. 28; and F. Chopin's Scherzo in B flat Minor.

The 143-127 score, by which Loyola edged A.U. in the M-D Championships last weekend belies a really fine Loyola team performance. Our natators placed at least two finalists in 11 of the 13 individual events and lost others by inches.

The most outstanding performance was that of junior Ken Freimuth. Ken came home with two championships and one runner-up spot. Enroute to the 200 yd. breaststroke title, he smashed his own record with a fine 2:26.3. Also, Kenny captured the companion 100 yd. breaststroke title, and finished second to Williams of A.U. in the 200 yd. Individual medley.

Inter-Province Play Festival Successful

Last Weekend, the Jesuit Inter-Province One-Act Play Festival was held at host St. Joseph's College's Flannigan Auditorium in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. The festival, a yearly affair, has a format composed of the best one act plays from each of the three participating east coast provinces.

This year's program saw New York's Fordham University representing the New York Province, presenting a play called "The Lady In Red" by Walter Catlett, and Loyola College, representing the Maryland Province, presenting "Impromptu" by Tad Mosel. The New England Province was not represented this year but was substituted for by the host college's presentation of a musical comedy called "Kiss me Kool."

Impromptu Lauded

On the whole, the evening's festivities were very well received and St. Joseph's entry was again acclaimed. However, it was remarked that Fordham's vehicle was not of high enough quality to support the very capable acting of their performers.

Loyola's production of "Impromptu" was reported to have been a favorite with the Philadelphia audience and was in the eyes of one reporter "... even better than it had been." John Synodinos directed.

Sodality Dance

On March 17, St. Patrick's Day, The Sodality of the Immaculate Conception will hold a dance in the cafeteria at 8:30 p.m.

Library Opportunity

The Maryland Library Association has announced a $1000 scholarship for anyone qualified to enter a graduate school of library science. The only qualification is a bachelor's degree and an agreement to work in a Maryland library for two years after receiving the degree. Anyone interested should contact Miss Mary Huber at the central branch of the Enoch Pratt Free Library before April 30.

Show On The Road

The Glee Club is to be congratulated on its concert held in Staten Island, N.Y. last weekend. Both Notre Dame and Loyola College performed before a most enthusiastic audience.

Lectures

Lecture notices are posted on the Bulletin Boards.

Mr. Blanchard has been on the staff of the International Labor Organization for the past thirteen years. Prior to assuming his present duties, Mr. Blanchard specialized in maritime labor problems at I.L.O. headquarters, Geneva, Switzerland.

World Traveler

In his former post Mr. Blanchard traveled extensively throughout the world serving as a technical expert at various I.L.O. conferences, and as a personal representative of the Director General of the I.L.O.

Mr. Blanchard was born in Lincoln, Nebraska, and is a graduate of the University of Nebraska. He has also completed two years of graduate study.

Checkered Career

Following his university studies Mr. Blanchard became an underwriter of marine insurance. In 1942, he was called to active duty in the Army of the United States, and served throughout World War II in North Africa. Mr. Blanchard left the service in 1945 with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

Recently, Mr. Blanchard attended the fourteenth session of the United Nations General Assembly as an I.L.O. observer.

This talk, which begins at 3:00, promises to be most informative and interesting. All are cordially invited to attend.

A Lenten Message

Ashes In Spring

We all know that Ash Wednesday comes at a time when days are lengthening and life is promising. But have we ever noticed the vital connection between the spring and the time of discipline, "this time of Christian warfare," which is Lent? Or have we considered that the regrowth of our earth is one thing, the return of the Lenten discipline quite another?

It is hard to see the simple and the obvious: we prefer the future and the possible to the present and the actual. And so we prefer to overlook the importance of a Lent which obviously has meaning only in relation to a Resurrection. We prefer to forego discipline rather than to realize the preparation, as Pope St. Leo said, for "the Paschal Feast upon which all the mysteries of our religion converge."

In our times, the Church has made sight easier for us. She has, for example, mitigated the rules of fast; Lent no longer points to the man whose fasting is effectively indistinguishable from today's dieting. Rather the Church points to such fasting men as the early Christians, whose hunger enabled them to give both food and alms to the poor. The emphasis is again where it belongs: on the fruits of discipline.

One of these summarizes them all: Christian charity, the charity celebrated in the Epistle for Quinquagesima Sunday, the charity which is possible not because of Lent but because of Easter. If we understand that Lent points us toward the realization of charity, toward the realization that "our (true) life is hid with Christ in God," then we have done our part in accomplishing Lent's purpose in the spring of the year: to harmonize the rhythms of the world, of our nature and of grace, the rhythms of our environment's life, our own life, and God's life.

Discipline is for discovery. And the Lenten discipline is given us each spring that we may rediscover the Paschal Mystery.

*The Diving HistorianVic Corbin

The Greyhound this week salutes Vic Corbin, a senior history major who has just finished his athletic career at Loyola in a fitting manner by garnering first place in the Mason-Dixon Tournament diving competition held at Gallaudet College in Washington D.C. last Friday and Saturday.

Coming to Evergreen from Loyola High School, Vic had no previous diving experience. But he did play on the football team there and it was then that he developed the ambition and the will to win which so characterized his diving efforts at Loyola. Playing only on the Jr. Varsity for the first two years he finally made the Varsity in his Junior year and was captain of the "team named desire" in his Senior year.

Vic's team efforts extended also to the class as he was elected to the Vice-Presidency in his Freshman and Sophomore years at Blakely and finally to the Presidency in his Junior and Senior years. He was also an active member of the Sodality. In his Senior year he received a gold medal for his role as Falstaff in a dramatics presentation of Henry IV.

Convinced to Dive

Upon coming to Evergreen, Vic had no idea he would be diving, because he had never had any experience in it. But he had a talk with Bill Klarner, the amiable and inimitable coach of the swimming team, who convinced him to come out for the team. Vic was undecided about diving because he knew once he started his ambition would not let him stop, no matter what. However, he decided to dive: a choice I am sure he is not sorry he made now. In his Freshman year he did not even qualify in the Tournament, but the next year he placed fifth, then the following year third, and this year first. This testifies to the determination which made him a champion.

Vic is surprised while working on a difficult history paper.

Corbin—THE DIVER

Other Activities

Aside from diving, which takes up a surprising amount of time, Vic also coaches the Junior Varsity football team at Loyola High School which won the private school championship in his first year of coaching. He also has participated in Loyola Night in all of his four years and this year put in a three act effort. In his Sophomore year he received the Schmidt Medal which is given to the member of the swimming team who best displays the characteristics of a fierce competitor. Vic was third in the South Atlantic's last year and in his last career meet this year he broke Tony Dorn's record of 67.8 points with a total of 70.88.

As captain of the team this year, Vic has instilled desire to do "one's best" which has always been his ideal. His example has been an inspiration. He will be missed by his teammates next year but I am sure he will be a success in whatever he tries: be it teaching or coaching football and diving, his two ambitions.

STICKS and STONES

Much has been done in recent months to advance the prestige of our school. The Greyhound basketballers and wrestlers ended the season with excellent records, and the Hound Natators won the Mason-Dixon Swimming Tournament for the Second Consecutive year. Various members of our faculty are embarking on studies to broaden their scope of knowledge. Our Dramatic Society won the Maryland Province One-Act Play contest. All of these things have helped to keep Loyola in the news and to raise her prestige throughout the city and state. There did occur, however, something which, although it could not hurt the prestige of the College, should make all Loyola men feel a little ashamed of themselves. I am referring to the case of the stolen lamps from RCIA Hall after the Sophomore Class Party on February 17.

The biggest problem concerning this matter is why would anyone steal a glass lamp. I am quite sure that there are no members of this school who uses kerosene to light the lamps in their homes, so this eliminates the possibility of stealing out of necessity.

Another possibility would be the want of a souvenir for a girlfriend or the Loyola student. Well, if this be the case, one would question the mentality of both parties.

So the problem still remains: Why would anyone want a glass lamp? I would gladly accept an answer from anyone who took one of these lamps. All you have to do is to write your answer on a sheet of paper (You don't have to sign your name), put it in an envelope, and slip it under the door of the Greyhound office between now and March 24.

By this time the faithful readers of this paper will think that "Impromptu" is the only show we've seen. But as an epilogue, let me offer one concluding note.

All of us have heard time and time again about the importance of "team effort." Mostly it comes from athletic coaches at communion breakfasts and more recently from our latest astronaut. Often it is overlooked that this spirit of co-operation extends to a number of other areas. This is especially true of dramatics.

Loyola in "Impromptu" achieved an ensemble which was truly remarkable. This accounted to some extent for its success. This spirit must not only include the members of the cast but also the director.

During the rehearsals for "Impromptu," I had the privilege of watching the play grow. I also was fortunate enough to see all three performances. This cast and director, although at times at disagreement, arrived at a harmony which enabled them to present the best show in the last three years.

John Synodinos, a Loyola graduate, has only been directing for two years. In his career he has directed such plays as "The Importance of Being Ernest," "Ghosts," and "My Three Angels." This last play is his best effort.

On his arrival and at various times since then, he has received some criticism. John has little respect for acting technique. He demands much more from his actors than mere technique. John encourages his cast to gain insight into their characters so that they live rather than act their roles. This is, of course, very difficult and many inferior actors fail to achieve the desired result.

second in defense of his 220 freestyle crown. Lanky junior Jimmy Burns pulled an upset in his 100 yd. backstroke victory. Jimmy also finished third in the 200 backstroke behind Joe Doyle. Doyle, a Freshman standout also had a third place finish in Burns' triumph.

Senior Vic Corbin easily outpointed the opposition enroute to winning the Diving title. Freshman, Skip Seward, distinguished himself by finishing sixth in the diving finals on a very good effort.

Darkhorse Tom Jetters swam his way into the limelight by scoring in three events. Tom opened the tournament with a second in the 1500 meter freestyle, followed that with a third in the 220 yd. freestyle, and capped his meet performance with another second in the 440 yd. freestyle. Marty Schnuit was runner-up to Freimuth in the 100 yd. Breaststroke, and was fourth in the 200 yd. breaststroke.

Soph. Charlie Brooks—the sole Loyolan to place in the sprints—was third in the 50yd. freestyle and fifth in the 100. Charlie also swam a leg in the on the second place 400 yd. freestyle relay team. Departing seniors Jim Sydnor and Jerry Preis also swam legs in the relay—putting a neat ending to their careers. The medley relay team also copped a second.

The Riflemen

The Loyola College Rifle Team is now in the process of firing in the State Round-Robin Tournament. They defeated the defending champions, Western Maryland, 1371-1371 (won on standing score) in the first round last week, and they fired against Johns Hopkins yesterday (results not available). They complete the Round-Robin next Friday against Morgan.

Meanwhile, they defeated Dickinson College for the second time this year 1366-1366 (won on standing score), but dropped a 1386-1386 decision (lost on standing score) to Howard University to bring their dual meet record to six wins and four losses. The score against Howard University also set a new school record, breaking the old mark of 1375 set in 1959.

Loyola Matmen Second; Schlipp Retains Crown

Last weekend at Hopkins, Loyola's grapplers finished a very strong second in the Mason-Dixon Wrestling Tournament. The title was won by the University of Baltimore which tallied 76 points as against the runner-up Hounds' 65 point total. American U. placed a distant third with 34 tallies.

The Hounds had a near record total of six of their matmen fight their way into Saturday night's final round. Here is how they fared.

In the 123 lb. contest, Loyola's third seeded Freshman Bish Baker dropped a tough 3-0 decision to defending champ Pat Possident of B.U.

Alex Schlipp, Loyola's 137 lb. titlest, topped Tom Winslow of Hopkins, 5-0, to retain his crown.

In the 147 lb. clash, Jack Cupp of B.U. downed the Hounds' Butch Emmett in a very hard fought overtime match.

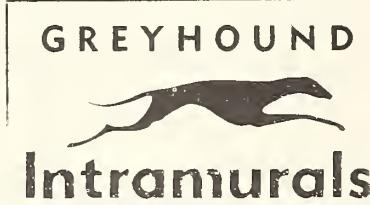

Tommy Milligan lost a 6-0 decision to defending champ Fritz Maier of A.U. in the 167 lb. class.

Loyola's 177 lb. Freshman Colin Delpi dropped an extremely close 3-1 decision to number one seeded Mike O'Conner of Western Maryland.

In the unlimited division, the fans saw the best contest of the evening as the Hounds' Charley Graham fought B.U.'s favored Bo Hardesty to a 3-3 draw in a double overtime. Hardesty was awarded the title by a referee's decision.

Altogether, the Hounds had one first, five seconds and a third by Mike Buchness in the tough 157 lb. class. This fine team effort was highlighted by the performances of Freshmen Delpi and Baker who displayed a great deal of poise in their initial tourney appearance.

The second place finish highlighted a very successful mat season which also saw Loyola cop the dual meet crown. With only two members of the squad graduating, the Hounds appear to have an even brighter grappling future. Nine of the squads eleven members will return next season. That looks like a pretty fair nucleus around which to build a title winner and, for this reason, we expect another fine year, next year.

Intramurals

Last week's play in the intramural basketball league saw the Polar Bears and the Fips win easily. The Penguins led by Jenkins, Schrock, Piper, and Griffin dropped their first game to the Polar Bears 53 to 35. Sohler, Burchell, Campbell, Van Daniker, and Cherry figured in the Polar Bear scoring.

The Fingers were the victims in the other game by a 43 to 35 score to the Fips. Glorioso had 12, Donellan 15, and Anton 8 to account for the Finger's scoring and Frost, Kosiorek, Baldwin, and Kessler led the Fips to victory. The Polar Bears victory puts them in first place.

Hound Cagers Eliminated In M-D's Opening Round

The Greyhound cagers were eliminated in the first round of the Mason-Dixon tourney for the second time in three years by Catholic University. The final score was 57-50.

The pressure at stake was clearly evidenced by the cautious play of both teams. The game was a far cry from the four overtime thriller that resulted the last time these two teams met.

Conservative play and tight defense by both teams led to a low scoring first half as the Hounds were on top 25-24 at the buzzer. Oddly enough, Loyola made only a single trip to the foul line in the entire first half. This is truly remarkable considering the tenacity with which the Cardinal's policed the Hounds.

But the most important factor in the game was Loyola's inability to score a point until eight valuable minutes had elapsed in the second half. Catholic U. capitalized on this and built up a seven point lead.

Don Wallenhorst's back to back jump shots and Billy Morris' two foul shots closed the gap until Horan and Boylan of the Cardinal's scored to put C.U. ahead to stay.

Tension mounted and an attempted breakup of a fast break by Charlie O'Donnell resulted in a brawl to give the game a fist-swinging finish.

Outshooting the Cardinal's by four goals from the field, the game was decided on the foul line as Loyola converted 8 of 13 to C.U.'s 23 of 31. The Tournament loss was the only sour note in the fine Hound season which saw the team post a 9-3 record.

The hound grapplers relax in the dressing room after a hard day at the Mason-Dixon Turney.
